SEVEN ARE KILLED IN FREAK CRASHES

Two Women and Man Burn to Death and Four Drown
Under Automobiles.

ONE ESCAPES INJURY

Wichita, Kan., Nov. 17 (A.P.).—Two women and a man were burned to death and another man saved his life by smothering a glass door of a sedan which struck the rear of a parked oil truck and burst into flames nine miles south of here early today.

The dead are Ernest Barber, 30, Belle Plaine, Kan., son of Tom Barber, wealthy farmer; Mrs. Fleeta Robbier, 38, Wichita, estranged wife of Dr. W. W. Robbier, Paxico, Kan.; Mrs. Ethel Adams, 29, Wichita.

Shelby White, 27, Belle Plaine, smashed the glass door with his foot and escaped. He was slightly injured. Barber was driving. White said none of the occupants of the car saw the truck because it bore no tail light. When White managed to free himself from the burning sedan, he tried to save his companions, but the terrific heat drove him back. Examination disclosed a rod projecting from the truck had placed the sedan's gasoline tank, which exploded. All three of the persons killed were burned beyond recognition and parts of the car were blown 100 feet by the force of the explosion.

C. Yosum, driver of the truck which was laden with oil rigid machinery, reported later to the sheriff's office. He said he had left the truck and had gone for repairs to a punctured tire. There was a light on the cab, he asserted.

At the sheriff's office it was said prosecution would depend on the results of a coroner's inquest Monday.

Sloux Falls, S. Dak., Nov. 17 (A.P.).—Trapped in an automobile which overturned into the Big Sioux River in Sherman Park here, four persons were drowned today.

The victims were Marie Lauter, Beatrice Mandell, William Quinley and Howard McHenry, all of Sloux Falls.

All except Miss Mandell were students at Sloux Falls College.

The automobile had just rounded a turn in the park when it left the slightly winding drive and crashed through an iron guard rail, through a small tree and into the river. The car landed bottom side up.

STUDENT TRIO HELD UNDER RUM CHARGE

Liquor hidden in "virtually every room of the house," officials said.

Twenty members of the fraternity, who live at the house, held a meeting immediately following the raid. At its finish they handed Sheriff Hester Shook the written names of the three men they said were the owners of the liquor.

Sheriff Shook said he believed the men had been buying liquor for at least a year and that they had stored it in a room at 412 1/2 West 10th street, near the railroad tracks.

At a public hearing held today, the three men were held for preliminary hearing next Friday.

State's Attorney Roy Cline announced he would padlock the fraternity house tomorrow.

Thomas Arlie Clark, dean of men, and his assistant, Fred Turner, the latter of whom was present at the fraternity members' meeting, reported they had nothing to say of the affair.

Horses Abandoned. By Houston Police

Houston, Tex., Nov. 17.—The last of Houston's traffic horses passed to private ownership with the sale of a mare to Leon Stettgen for $75. A furor was created among the city's last day may when the new city administration announced its intention of abolishing the mounted system of directing traffic.

At a public auction, all but one of the steeds were sold, several bringing from $500 to $1,000 apiece. All of the horses originally cost the city an average of about $200.

Porfirio Gil was made provisional president and took office at that time to serve until another could be chosen for a four-year term in a general election. Whoever is elected as the result of the long and active campaign which ended yesterday will be inaugurated on February 5.

"The revolutionary party claimed to have polled 86,669 votes in the federal district alone. The antirevolutionist vote was not believed to have approached this. The revolutionary party claimed to have had commanding majorities in 23 of the 38 states.

Blocked Voting Charged.

While the antirevolutionists conceded the victory of Ortiz Rubio, their president, Victorio E. Congora, said that nevertheless Vasconcelos was the true president of "Mexico."

Congora issued a signed statement charging that there had been no free voting anywhere in the country.

"In the field of democracy Mexico has failed," the statement read. "In all towns and cities citizens have been prevented from voting and only public functionaries charged with furthering the most shameful imposition in our political history have been permitted to do so, excepting in very few instances."

"In this capital, arms, clubs and pulque (a native alcoholic drink) were distributed to official elements who since last night have occupied the voting booths, refusing to permit a single antirevolutionist citizen to vote.

Brutal Aggression, He Says.

"This morning the federal place of justice was insufficiently large to contain more than 10,000 antirevolutionists who, deprived of their right to vote, went there to protest. Our partisans have been villainously assassinated throughout the republic and the jails are filled with them.

"Civilization is in mourning and the judge impartially and severely this brutal aggression against liberty and law. For the Mexicans, Vasconcelos is president."

POSTAL INSPECTOR GRANT MILLER DIES

Cold Contracted at Rites for Senator Burton Is Fatal to Chief.

FOUND DEAD IN HIS BED

Grant B. Miller, chief inspector of the Postoffice Department and one of the most highly respected inspectors in the department's history, was found dead in his bed at 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon at the Continental Hotel. Dr. J. Ramsay Nevitt, coroner, attributed his death to heart disease. He was 62 years old.

A close friend of Senator Theodore Burton, Miller became ill about 10 days ago with a cold while attending the funeral of the legislator in Cleveland. He had been confined to his bed since he returned. R. D. Mills, manager of the hotel, found Miller's body after attendants had been unable to arouse him.

Miller has been in the Postoffice Department for more than 30 years and during the latter part of his career had figured in the solution of some of the most notable mail robbery cases. Beginning as a railway mail clerk, he soon advanced to the position of inspector, then assistant chief inspector and three years ago to the post of chief of the division.

At one time, upon the request of Senator Burton, he became acting postmaster at Cleveland during an upheaval, and at another time held a similar position in Chicago. He was also chief inspector at Chicago for a number of years, the Illinois city being the center of the largest and most important area in the United States from an inspector's point of view. He had been in the capital about seven years.

Among Miller's most sensational pieces of work in the postoffice service was the capture of the D'Autremont brothers, notorious mail train robbers, in Seattle, Wash., several years ago.

A native of Willard, Ohio, Miller was a student at Ohio Northern College where Senator Fess was a professor. There, his wife died a year ago and he had the attempt of the willard was notified and will come to Washington to see to the funeral arrangements.

Upon learning of Miller's death, Walter F. Brown, Postmaster General, said:

"The death of Mr. Miller is a sad shock to all his associates. In recognition of his long and brilliant service in the inspection division, Hon. Harry S. New in 1926 appointed him chief inspector, a post which he has since filled with credit to himself and to the service to which he was devoted. A man of sound judgment, and his untimely death the Postoffice Department has sustained a heavy loss."

Partisans of Ortiz Rubio gained control in this way of almost all booths here and Vasconcelos complained that they were not permitted to vote. Several were wounded when Ortiz Rubio's men, armed with clubs, attacked one of the few opposition-controlled booths in the city, destroyed the ballots of the antirevolutionists and ousted them from control of the booth.

Members of the American Club had "front row seats" at their window for one of the street fights broken up by mounted police and officers on motorcycles. A small guard of soldiers had been stationed around the American Embassy early in the morning but had nothing to do.

Sixteen heavily loaded trucks filled with campaign workers were drawn up in front of the Ortiz Rubio central headquarters. Over the headquarters, which last Sunday was the center of a riot in which the building was damaged and thirteen were wounded, appeared a banner, "This is the work of the Vasconcelos culture." Airplanes circled overhead from an early hour throwing campaign propaganda.

Defeated Candidate, Missing, Is Located

Mazatlan, Sinaloa, Mexico, Nov. 17 (A.P.).—Jose Vasconcelos, Mexican presidential candidate in today's elections, who had been reported missing for several days, was located in a hotel here this afternoon. He was closely guarded by several followers.

After casting his vote, Vasconcelos and his bodyguard left for Culiacan, Sinaloa. Police prevented any political demonstrations during the voting and no unusual interest was manifested here.

Lifer Granted Right To Choose Prison

Ithaca, Mich., Nov. 17.—Even a convict is entitled to the benefits of those associations which grow up with long residence in a given place. Judge Kelley S. Searl decided when he allowed the plea of Fay Wiles, 67 years old, to be allowed to spend the rest of his life in Jackson Prison, instead of at Marquette.

Wiles argued that it would take him away from all of his old associates to drag him clear up to the upper peninsula prison, to spend the rest of his life on the bleak shores of Lake Superior.

Wiles is an old resident of Jackson. He just left there last August after spending five years behind the bars of the old and the new prison. Incidentally, Wiles is somewhat of a connoisseur of prisons, having spent 26 of his last 38 years behind bars. The life sentence came as a result of his conviction on a charge of breaking and entering, his sixth felony.

New Route Discovered For Continental Divide

Jasper Park, Nov. 17.—A new and hitherto unknown route across the Continental Divide has just been discovered some distance south of the Canadian National Railway's crossing at Yellowstone.

An expedition under Maj. Fred Brewster, well-known guide and outfitter, returned to Jasper recently after a successful attempt to go from the Tongue Valley on the Athabasca and Arctic watersheds into Fitzwilliam Basin, which drains through the Fraser River into the Pacific.

16 Escape From Jail Second Time in Month

Madisonville, Ky., Nov. 17 (A.P.).—Sixteen prisoners, nine of them Negroes, escaped from the Hopkins County Jail here early today by removing locks from three cells and a door leading to the cellroom. William Pillow, Negro, was the only one to be captured.

Today's escape marked the second major jail delivery from the Hopkins County Jail this month. On November 2 eight men escaped by digging a hole through a brick wall. Bryant Todd, who escaped in the first delivery, got away again today. Most of those in today's break were held on liquor charges.

On Christmas

Comdr. and Mrs. Hinkamp Buy Charming Place in Georgetown.

PLANS for a housewarming on Christmas Day are being made by Commander and Mrs. Clarence Nelson Hinkamp, who have bought a very old and charming residence at 1232 Third street, into which they propose to move soon. Mrs. Hinkamp will feel much at home in Georgetown, for, as Miss Frances Miller, she lived in the quaint old city before her marriage. Last spring Commander and Mrs. Hinkamp returned to Washington for station after having been in China for several years.

Commander and Mrs. Hinkamp bought their new home from Mr. Francis De Wolf, of the State Department, who, in turn, has purchased the famous "Bodisco house" at 3222 O street, which he is restoring in the most thorough and artistic way.

This mansion is noted as the scene of one of those "half-forgotten romances of history," one with an international flavor. There Baron Alexander de Bodisco, Minister of Russia nearly a century ago, claimed as his bride Miss Harriet Williams, a Georgetown girl in her teens, the wedding taking place in the mansion which was then the Russian Legation. There they lived and entertained lavishly until the baron's death.

Years ago the house, a substantial gray brick structure, was remodeled into small apartments, but Mr. and Mrs. De Wolf are restoring it in accordance with the original plans. They are now in Europe, but on their return expect to move into the house, new to them but redolent of old-time hospitality and alive with memories of such distinguished guests as President Van Buren, Henry Clay, John C. Fremont and Henry Stephens Fox, then British Minister to the United States.

Mrs. William H. Taft
To Receive Today.

Mrs. William Howard Taft, wife of the Chief Justice, will receive informally this afternoon at her home on Wyoming avenue.

The Secretary of Agriculture and Mrs. Hyde will be the honor guests at a dinner preceding the first Army dance at the Willard next Friday night, given by Col. and Mrs. Hugh C. Smith.

Mrs. William Wolfe Smith will entertain at luncheon in the presidential suite and the cabinet room at the Willard next Friday, November 22, at which Mrs. Edward E. Gann will be the honor guest. Mrs. Arthur M. Hyde, wife of the Secretary of Agriculture, will be the next ranking guest. Bridge will follow the luncheon.

Representative and Mrs. Richard Aldrich will entertain at a tea in their home on Massachusetts avenue December 21, when they will present the latter's daughter, Miss Janet White, to society.

Mrs. Erik S. Henius and her small daughter, Eleanor, will arrive in New York tomorrow on the Oscar II from Copenhagen, Denmark, to attend the wedding of the former's brother, Mr. Charles Carr Koonen, and Miss Violet Ledig. Mrs. Henius will be met in New York by her mother, Mrs. Charles K. Koonen, and they will come directly to Washington.

Senator and Mrs. Lee S. Overman, of North Carolina, are at the Powhatan Hotel for the winter.

The Secretary of Agriculture and Mrs. Arthur M. Hyde, with their daughter, Miss Caroline Hyde, will be honor guests at the December meeting of the Missouri Society, which will be held at the Washington Hotel, Hall of Nations, Saturday evening, December 7.

This meeting is first in a series of programs which the executive committee of the society has planned for Missourians in Washington. There will be a program and dancing after the reception. Mrs. E. NEW YORK

By MARIE PAULETTE.

TINY tots who spend most of their time in play demand comfortable attire. They, of course, adore wearing pretty frocks, and it's amusing how important they feel when they know they are dressed attractively.The little outfit I'm showing is darling of the mode. It's a real favorite with mother, too, because of its simplicity to make and to launder.
It's one piece!It has a cute little yoke effect at front formed by rows of shirring. The back of dress is cut from neckline at center and finished for closing. The front and back are now joined at sides and shoulders. The front is gathered at neckline just above the shirring and it is ready for round collar to be stitched at neckline and sleeves sewed into armholes. If short sleeves are desired, the edges of kimono sleeves are completed with cuffs.The generously full-cut bloomers are gathered into knee bands, or may be made with elastic inserted through band, which is used for hem at waistline.It is made of shiny cotton broadcloth in French blue with novel rings in bright red. The collar, cuffs and knee bands are of plain blue in matching shade. It is decidedly
French and so inexpensive.Style No. 8155 can be had in sizes
2, 4, 6 and 8 years. In the 4-year size,
2 1/2 yards of 32-inch material with 1/4 yard of 32-inch contrasting material is required.Child and white checked gingham with plain orchid nile green cham-bray with matching green and white checked gingham contrast. Candy striped percale with plain in harmonizing tone, red and white plique with plain white and wool jersey in beige shade with brown are interesting study ideas.For a pattern of today's style, fill

The fashionable woman today is the one

THE NATIONAL EMERGENCY.

There is no longer any pretense that American business has escaped a heavy blow from the losses incurred in Wall street speculation. Every one knows that hundreds of thousands of individuals and thousands of corporations were engaged in speculation and that they all lost money. The effort to conceal this knowledge and to whistle away the damage by giving out the misleading assurance that "business is not affected" is mere nonsense. The practical thing to do is what President Hoover is doing—to rally the best and strongest men in the country together, to devise and execute plans for safeguarding business and preventing a collapse of confidence.

Several factors will operate to avert a catastrophe, in spite of the individual losses that are reacting upon business operations. The strongest factor is that the country is solvent and possessed of enormous latent resources. Money is available at low rates for any solid enterprise. There is no shrinkage of credit, and perhaps a shrinkage can be avoided. Another powerful factor is the economic peace that prevails. Labor and capital are in harmony. Together they are unconquerable. Still another favorable factor is the power of the Government to bolster up agriculture, which is already reaching a better position because of good crops and improved marketing methods.

Individual retrenchment will inevitably follow the loss of funds, and the collective effect of enforced economy in buying will probably be severe. But many of the great corporations producing necessities are in a position to enlarge their operations, and they should have the courage to do so. The people must be fed, clothed and sheltered. The increase of population creates a large market in itself. If unemployment should develop in certain directions the slack can be taken up in other industries and in provision for public improvements of various kinds. No doubt Congress will be responsive to recommendations from the President, based upon well considered plans for public works.

One of the first results of the pinch will probably be a flood of bogus "relief" proposals by enterprising legislators who hope to obtain big appropriations on the strength of ameliorating the expected depression. River and harbor improvements, public buildings, and sectional schemes for dams, irrigation systems, fertilizer factories, and other devices to extract money from the Treasury will be proposed. One or two of these schemes have passed Congress, such as Black Canyon Dam and Muscle Shoals, even while times were flourishing. Prudent members of Congress should be on the lookout to kill off similar proposals at the forthcoming session.

What is needed now is teamwork for the general welfare, not selfish schemes to promote sectional or class interests.

FOR COMMERCIAL DEFENSE.

Until midsummer it was generally believed that the way had been paved for speedy re-establishment of the American merchant marine. Congress had enacted legislation providing for the transfer of Shipping Board vessels to private ownership, making available a large fund from which loans for the construction of new tonnage could be granted, and establishing liberal mail subsidies calculated to make possible the profitable operation of American flagships in competition with foreign vessels. But a controversy arose in the awarding of mail contracts, as a result of which construction activity was halted, and the interdepartmental committee, whose duty it is to pass upon such contracts, has asked Congress to clarify the "intent" as expressed in the shipping law.

The danger that lies behind the present confused situation was clearly expressed by Senator Copeland at a dinner of the American Society of Naval Architects and Marine Engineers. "What our country is to be in the family of nations," he said, "depends upon its merchant fleet. We may have treasure of gold in the bank, but unless we can dispose of our surplus goods and crops to advantage our riches will disappear. The great power are the nations that control the export trade. In the last analysis it is the merchant fleet and not the vessels of war that fix national supremacy. While we are delaying the help that will make our merchant marine a factor in world trade, our foreign competitors are building faster and better ships. We will drop behind in the race if the Government does not keep faith with the shipping interests."

Every maritime nation is building ships and laying plans to capture international commerce. American commerce should be carried in American ships. This country can not afford to risk its great overseas trade by depending upon ships that can be taken off in time of war—and not only be taken off, but be converted into commerce destroyers to prey upon American shipping.

THE LONDON CONFERENCE.

The basis upon which the proposed London naval conference was planned and the manner in which it is proposed to conduct negotiations insure the failure of the conference. Sweeping aside the misrepresentations and hot air that surround the facts, it is evident that the elements of an agreement are totally lacking.

Not one of the governments concerned is ready to make concessions. All of them are making demands that call for increases of naval power.

In spite of the deluge of brotherly love propaganda put forth by the British Socialist government, the fact states Americans in the face that Ramsay MacDonald interposes a veto against the building of American cruisers up to the point of equality with British cruiser strength. Ambassador Dawes admits this fact upon his return to London. He tries to minimize the deadlock over parity by suggesting that the prime object of the conference is to abolish competition. But since both President Hoover and Prime Minister MacDonald have already solemnly proclaimed that competition is abolished, Mr. Dawes' suggestion is a little late.

The refusal of Rear Admiral Jones to take part in the London conference is better understood when considered in connection with Ambassador Dawes' reiterated statement that "statesmen" and not naval technicians are to settle the naval problem. The conference is to be a political conference. It will be a gathering of politicians calling themselves statesmen, with each attempting to fool the others, and all of them attempting to fool the world into believing that the governments are trying to reduce naval power, when in fact each of them is demanding increased naval power.

It is little wonder that Rear Admiral Jones, after his experience at Geneva, should refuse to take part in the conference at London. He stands for parity of the fleet. "Inasmuch as there is no intention on the part of the British government to agree to actual parity," Admiral Jones evidently does not feel that he can be of service. The political counterfeits of parity can be arranged without him.

The only way for the administration to make the London conference "successful" is to surrender naval advantage to both Great Britain and Japan. Great Britain will not agree to cruiser parity, and Japan demands a relative increase of cruiser strength. Both will gladly subscribe to a treaty recognizing America's leadership in the case of naval limitation if the limitations are applied to the United States Navy and not to their own. But the disadvantage of negotiating such a "successful" treaty is that it would be rejected by the Senate.

Secretary Blumson has devoted three weeks to mastering the naval problems that he is to deal with, but Senators Reed and Robinson are still to become experts. They have been busy with other political campaign operations in the Senate. Their present attitude toward the Navy is the simple-minded attitude held by most Americans, who innocently suppose that "naval parity" means naval parity. Senators Reed and Robinson must apply themselves diligently to the great task that awaits them. They must prepare to convince themselves that naval concessions to Great Britain and Japan, and perhaps to France and Italy, will constitute an enormous stride toward world peace. As signers of such a treaty they will be expected to champion it in the Senate. When the time comes for them to explain to their colleagues that the weakening of the United States Navy really strengthens the Nation, let them be well prepared to prove their case, because "these Americans are a rude and clownish people, that call a spade a spade."

THE ANTITRUST LAWS.

Federal Trade Commissioner Humphrey has frequently been mentioned as favoring repeal or material amendment of the antitrust laws. But speaking before the American Institute of Steel Construction, at Biloxi, Mr. Humphrey asserted that he not only did not counsel the abandonment of the laws, but that they must be retained if free trade is to remain the policy of the Nation. He sees nothing whatsoever to indicate that the laws are about to be repealed or materially changed.

If the antitrust laws were abandoned a substitute regulatory system to keep business in line would have to be set up. Conditions have changed since the enactment of the Sherman act, but human instincts have not changed, and business is prone to fight its battles with every weapon at its disposal. The antitrust laws have stood through the years as an insurmountable obstacle to monopoly. The mere fact that big business is no longer looked upon fearfully is explicable by the fact that the antitrust laws have protected the public from exploitation.

But because conditions have changed and are changing, it is necessary that the antitrust laws be somewhat flexible. Commissioner Humphrey makes this point. The Sherman act, and the legislation supplemental thereto, namely, the trade-commission act and the Clayton act, were written in general terms. When Congress passes an act, says Mr. Humphrey, that act is not the law in the sense in which a law is generally conceived. "No one knows what a law really is and no one can say that a statute really has been written until the courts have construed it." For 40 years the courts have been interpreting the antitrust laws, until today it is possible with reasonable certainty to cite the law applicable to any given set of facts. To repeal or radically amend the antitrust laws, in the opinion of Mr. Humphrey, would be to turn the clock backward and destroy all that has been gained in these years of experience. The antitrust laws are under attack from powerful interests. Their merit and their necessity in the light of modern developments are scheduled for congressional debate. It would be well during the discussions if Commissioner Humphrey's contentions were kept in mind. Since for 40 years the courts have kept the antitrust laws in harmony with changing conditions, is there any real reason why they should be cast aside now in favor of bureaucratic regulation of business?

SINGAPORE NAVAL BASE.

It was a foregone conclusion that the British Labor government would halt work on the Singapore naval base. The last time that party was in power, in 1924, it caused a cessation of activity at Singapore, and there was not, at that time, an impending disarmament conference to spur it to action. But a few months later, when the Conservatives returned to power, the work was resumed, and there is every reason to believe that the present inactivity will be but temporary. The British Empire has need of a naval base at Singapore, and it will be built.

The project always has been unpopular with the Labor party for political and economical reasons. From the political standpoint, construction of a huge, armored area at Singapore was held to be in contradiction of the peace policies of the party. From the practical standpoint, some $40,000,000 or more could be saved by abandonment of the project.

But another factor enters in. Great Britain not only promised the Dominions that the Singapore base would be constructed for their protection, but it also obtained from them contributions to its cost. Australia, New Zealand, Hongkong and India have money invested in the Singapore project. In 1924, when work was stopped, the Dominions entered a strong protest. It is significant to note that in last week's announcement of cessation of work at Singapore, First Lord of the Admiralty Alexander admitted that while the Dominions had not been notified of the decision they had not been consulted in advance.

There is no reason to believe that Britain will permanently abandon the Singapore base. The present action doubtless was formulated, agreed upon and thoroughly advertised for the purpose of making trading material for the forthcoming naval conference.

WHY ANOTHER BLOC?

From the Boston Transcript.

Howard Y. Williams, of New York, is traveling through the country in the interest of the organization of a third party. The program the gentleman advocates would not be especially noteworthy, were it not that he brings it forward because of the alleged lack of an opposition party and, incidentally, he would commit his third party of wholly dissimilar elements. He would use the so-called Labor party of New Bedford for its purposes in his part of the country, but farther west he would employ material which has nothing in common with the recognized labor groups of the East.

Mr. Williams is quite right in assuming that there is now no genuine opposition party in the United States Senate, but its seeming absence is more theoretical than real. The Democratic party in that body is merely making a holiday excursion into enemy territory for temporary purposes of its own, but in the matter of State and national organization and its functioning at election time, it is distinct as it ever was. It has, in fact, constituted a real opposition party, through its alliance with the Republican insurgents, and its avowed purpose is to break down the Republican administration, which is supported by a much larger proportion of the people of the United States than may be indicated by Senate roll call. How a genuine opposition to the existing regime can be established through a weak third party, picking off a congressman here and there, as is proposed, is not clear. Such a program would result only in the emergence of three blocs, with which real opposition would be impossible.

We quite agree that a strong opposition to the majority is always an element of political and national health. The remedy, however, is not the organization of a third party, catering to a few malcontents, but the election of enough representatives of one or the other of the majority parties to control Congress, and thus wipe out the third bloc. It is less important which party should triumph than that the third bloc should be destroyed; for the responsibility for inefficient action can not be placed when it is so divided that each of three groups can pass the buck to the others. The insurgent group, which now controls the Senate whenever the Democrats permit it to do so, has achieved its power by working within the party whose label it bears, not by trying to organize a third party and thus gain control. It did have a try at the Presidency, under La Follette, just as Roosevelt made an even larger attempt in 1912, but in neither case did a permanent third party result.

We would not dispute the fact that the two major parties are almost of the same way of thinking, but here again enters the discouraging factor, for the advocates of a third party, that they have and always will have a physical organization, equipped with leadership and money, which a third party never yet has developed. Disorder results from blocs and third party movements but genuine progress does not, except as one major party or the other takes over progressive ideas. The need of a strong opposition party is admitted on all sides, but in the present circumstances it has allowed itself to disintegrate for what it regards as a political advantage, temporary and futile though it may be. The national Democratic party will snap back into shape, however, when it finds its chance at supremacy seriously threatened by a third party movement, as it did in Virginia.

BUNKERS IN CALIFORNIA.
"A rose by any other name would smell as sweet."

Wise Shakespeare penned that line for men to keep.
By any other name would be as deep.

"Barranca," or "arroyo," these are names.
All California golfers proudly use.
"Beware that wide barranca!" one exclaims.
"Be very careful now which club you choose."

I call them bunkers. They are yawning things.
To trap the player's misdirected ball.
Oceans of grief from which disaster springs.
And golfer's hopes are lost beyond recall.

Well, let the Californians use what name.
They will puzzle Easterners who roam.
Who lands in a barranca acts the same.
As any bunkered maniac at home.

To Lay the Keel of a Battleship Is to Start the Widow's Tears.

By ROBERT QUILEN

WHEN a New York police official tells potential criminals they "can't get away with it," he expresses the fundamental truth of all sound philosophy.

It is a truth that should be obvious to all persons of sound mind, for it is nothing more remarkable than the self-evident fact that two halves of an apple are required to make a whole.

All things in this universe are balanced one against another. One pole is negative and the other positive. There are night and day, male and female, ebb and flow—each unit divided into halves and each half balancing the other to make the normal whole.

If one man strikes another in anger, the incident is not closed until he receives some hurt in return. His violence inspires anger and a desire for revenge, and these are as much a part of his blow as the ripe fruit is part of the seed from which it grew.

A few exceptional men gather great fortunes, and as wealth creates ever greater wealth and money accumulates faster than it can be expended, it seems inevitable that these few shall possess all the wealth of the world.

But the accumulation of wealth is not an act complete in itself. It is but half of the transaction. Abundance prompts waste, and the accumulation of wealth merely sets the stage for a second act, in which the wealth is dissipated and returned to the people. The wasters finish what the first harvester began, and the impulse that squanders the last dime was generated when the first dime was saved—as the last leaf to grow on a giant oak was begun when a hurried acorn sprouted—as a fall to earth completes the journey of an object thrown into the air.

As every act contains within itself the prompting of a reaction, it can not be completed until the reaction is finished. As a pendulum to which energy is applied must swing back and forth until the measure of energy is exhausted, so every act must be followed by the reaction determined by its nature.

A kind act prompts a return of kindness and an evil act prompts a return of evil. It has in itself the seed of its reward. And the reward in some fashion follows as inevitably as the harvest follows planting.

These things are not left to chance. They are determined by natural law. To believe that evil can be done and right violated without penalty of any sort is to believe that a half completes the whole—that objects thrown into the air will not fall—that the tides will ebb and not return.

The wisdom or unwisdom of an evil act is not determined by the opinion of moralists. Opinion doesn't affect the nature of a blister. And the most stupid of men, having traveled one-half of a rocky road, or seen one ear of a species, or eaten one-half of an egg, should be able to form an intelligent opinion of the other.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. L. PHILLIPS

FOOD AND THE NEXT WAR.

President Hoover would have an international agreement against food blockades in time of war. He would stop the ancient custom of trying to starve civilian populations. This is a good idea. When a man is deprived of food he feels embittered and revengeful. Nothing feeds a man's hatred like a stale doughnut when he craves a siren steak.

On the other hand feed him plenty and he will find it difficult to work up a good hatred against anybody except a slow waiter or a groceryman who delivered dried beef when the order was for roast sucking pig.

The fatter a man gets the less he wants to fight anybody. A knife and fork are his only natural weapons, anyhow.

The thing to do to shorten a war is to overfeed the civilian population and the army, too. Get everybody around 200 pounds, with a 40 to 45-inch waist-line, and no war would last beyond a few opening skirmishes. A fat man's war would be a dismal bust at the very beginning. The newspapers would carry pictures and stories in the comic sections instead of on the front pages and that would kill hostilities.

It is particularly important to overfeed rulers, cabinet officials and first lieutenants. The Kaiser had just taken off about 20 pounds when the World War broke out. Czar Nicholas had been off his feed for months. Von Hindenburg had been cutting out pastries and the British and French cabinets were singularly free from double chins. That explains everything.

No man whose tummy has begun to bulge and who has two or more chins is very hot for a battle. He would much rather go to a good musical show.

President Hoover is correct in his view, but he doesn't go far enough. He should come out for an international agreement to see that all warring nations get not only lots of food, but the choicest cuts. The armies should get oyster cocktails, a rich soup, grilled blue fish, English mutton chops, salad, coffee and raspberry ice cream for dinner every night. Then there couldn't be any hard feelings. The war would wind up very early, with both sides organizing mutual quartets and singing, "Oh, He's a Jolly Good Fellow."

POSSIBLE WAR BULLETIN OF THE FUTURE.
No Man's Land, Nov. 17.—Heavy gains were made by go. all along the line last night. It looks more and more as if the war would be determined by high blood pressure. We made a raid last night, penetrated the enemy lines and dumped 5,000 barrels of dressed poultry, vegetables, etc. They retaliated with a barrage of pork chops and creamed potatoes. We are both in great distress.

(Later).—We have won a great victory. Our kitchens made a surprise attack and fed the enemy apple pie a la mode for dessert. He is now quite helpless.

THE DIFFERENCE.
The world looks bleak and dreary. When market prices drop. It makes you sore and weary. When all quotations drop.

"The country's shot to pieces." You cry, "It's on the rocks." As you observe decreases. Mark every list of stocks. But when shares take to rising. And stocks go soaring, well. It's really quite surprising. How quickly all looks well.

The Prince of Wales has come out for long skirts to help the British cloth industry. That's sacrifice.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Brookhart's Lamentations Compared With Jeremiah's—But He Will Set Things Right.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: When Senator Brookhart speaks of "the vapors and fogs of crime and corruption, of dishonesty and vicious greed" which envelop the District of Columbia, and asserts that "the very source of the stream of government is foul with dishonesty and corruption," it is hardly possible that he expected us to swallow his eloquent and artfully alliterative words literally. Devoted leaders in every age and clime have made use of verbal exaggeration in their anxiety to arouse the befooled souls of their fellow-countrymen to the fact that there is "something rotten in Denmark."

Considered in this light, Senator Brookhart is one of an illustrious company. Harking back to the Old Testament, in Ecclesiastes we find the words, "Vanity of vanities, all things are vanity, all is vanity."

By David we are informed that "they are all gone aside, they are all together become filthy; there is none that doeth good, no, not one."

And again: "The wicked plotteth against the just and gnasheth upon him with his teeth."

Turning to the Book of Isaiah, we discover that the demon of drink was as ominous to the prophet as he is to Senator Brookhart: "But they also have erred through wine, and through strong drink are out of the way; the priest and the prophet have erred through strong drink, they are out of the way through strong drink; they are in vision, they stumble in judgment."

Referring to the lamentations of Jeremiah, we find a description of Jerusalem as shocking, if less explicit, than Senator Brookhart's of Washington: "Her faithfulness is in her skirts; she remembereth not her last end; therefore she came down wonderfully; she had no comfort."

Let us hope that no future Brookhart will have occasion to exist as Jeremiah does of Jerusalem: "How doth the city sit solitary, that was full of people! How is she become as a widow! She that was great among the nations!"

The truth is, no doubt, that the senator, as proud of Washington as any one else, the severity of his criticism being due to his extreme solicitude for her welfare. Ardent reformers of great intellectual strength sometimes get that way. Even the man on the street may have spoken when he is inclined to lament with Hamlet, "The time is out of joint; oh, cursed spite, that ever I was born to set it right!"

OLD WASHINGTONIAN.

Character Education to Be Established in the Public Schools.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The Board of Education has taken a constructive step in providing for a program of character education in place of withholding diplomas from students because of laxity in character development.

Every one will agree that it is desirable to see high school students completing their schooling without having acquired habits of dishonesty, immorality, truthfulness and personal cleanliness. But how could the situation be improved by withholding diplomas from students of this class when they have completed their academic work? The board would have been put in the position of denying graduation for failure in a field where it offers no instruction, or at least inadequate instruction. Only when the schools have instituted complete training in character development would they be justified in withholding diplomas for these social failings, and then the wisdom of doing so might be questioned, because principals already have authority to suspend or dismiss pupils guilty of such conduct.

A committee of teachers and school officials will study ways and means of establishing a comprehensive program of character education. Many of the leading schools in the country provide for instruction along this line. The proposed amendment to the rules will have served its purpose if it results in character training for high schools of the District.

Suggests Holiday Employment Bureau to Help Old People to Find Employment.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I submit a plan for the old people out of work. They offer a suggestion that may meet their need.

Christmas is coming. How many employers will be willing to make room in their offices for an out-of-work worker this winter? Why not open a Christmas employment bureau in every big city, to function from December 15 to January 1, at which every man and woman of 50 and over, who is out of work, will get the Christmas present of a job?

If every company, factory, newspaper, library, store, restaurant, office, and any other kind of business would make room for one more, there would be few old people out of work this Christmas.

I appeal for the old unemployed. Let us open a Christmas bureau and give them the kind of Christmas present that they most need.

Naval Delegates Cause Criticism by Traveling on Wet Foreign Ships.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I trust there is no slithering situation in the fact that the American delegates to the London Naval Conference are choosing a wet foreign ship, instead of a dry American ship for their voyage to Europe. It seems to me that Congress should insist that representatives of this Government remain free from the temptations that accompany sea trips on foreign vessels. I do not mean to suggest that members of the delegation while on shipboard or in Europe will violate the spirit of the prohibition law, but their action may be misconstrued and is regrettable.

RED PARTY EXPELS
OPPOSITION LEADERBucharin, Once Intimate of Stalin, Removed From Central Bureau.

"PERSISTED IN ERRORS"

Moscow, U. S. S. R., Nov. 17 (A.P.).—Nikolai Bucharin today was expelled from the powerful political bureau of the central committee of the Communist party as the leader of the right wing opposition in the party.

For more than ten years Bucharin has been one of the most prominent leaders of the Communist party. He was for many years editor of Pravda, the official organ of the party, until removed early this year. He had also been a member of the executive committee of the party and a member of the Presidium Council of Supreme Economy.

At the same time today Alexei Rykov and Michael Tomsky, also members of the political bureau besides holding important posts in the Soviet Union government, were warned that if they continued to oppose the present policy of the party similar measures would be immediately taken against them.

A commissar of labor, Uglanov, and several others broke with the Communist party after admitting their "mistakes" before a plenary session of the central committee of the Communist party. In forecasting today's events, the official government organ Isvestia nearly two weeks ago said that the results of the first year of the five-year industrialization plan had proved that members of the right wing were in the wrong.

Bucharin, considered the greatest authority on Communist theory, was once an intimate of Joseph Stalin, strong man of the party, but now is stripped of almost all power. The central committee has been in session here since November 10 and took the drastic step of expelling him from the political bureau because he "persisted in his mistakes."

They Call It Politics

By CARTER FIELD

ON Capitol Hill the President's prestige is far higher than it was ten days ago because of the formation of the new "Freshman" bloc. Twenty-four Republican senators who have been meeting in secret showed their hands for the first time on Thursday when they beat the motion to adjourn. Most of them also serving their first term. They have grown sick and tired of "Old Guard" leadership. They have wearied of the Progressive-Democratic coalition triumphs, and were unwilling to follow Jim Watson and Reed Smoot any further in the combat.

Actually they showed their strength for the first time when it was learned that Senator Watson's illness would require him to take an extended rest in Florida. At that time they voted to make Senator Charles L. McNary the Republican leader.

This was thwarted for the time being by the decision of Senator Wesley J. Jones, who already had the title of assistant leader, to take command. They had thought Jones eliminated because of his poor health. Their new organization, however, which has grown up around dinner tables at the Metropolitan Club, was not disclosed at that time. But the significance in the choice of McNary was there for any observer to note.

ACTUALLY the leadership of the new bloc is in close touch with President Hoover. Their broad policy on this tariff bill is precisely the policy on which Mr. Hoover insisted when, while down at Miami Beach just prior to his inauguration, he sent for Senator Smoot, chairman of the finance committee.

At that time he told Senator Smoot, who announced publicly his agreement, there must be only revision of the agricultural rates, plus revision of a limited number of industrial schedules on which conditions had changed since the writing of the present tariff law.

The policy of the "Freshman bloc" may be stated as follows: It wants no downward revision of any rate in the existing law. It wants sharp upward revision of the agricultural schedules. It wants a moderate upward revision of such industrial schedules as may be agreed upon, there being no hard-and-fast line as to which these shall be. It is agreed, further, that the export subsidy amendment of the Senate shall be dropped from the final bill, and it is agreeable to modification of the flexible provision leaving the final decision in each case with Congress.

THIS last feature is the only one on which the new bloc and the President part company. Mr. Hoover, of course, is very keen to retain the power to modify tariff rates as fast as Congress upward or downward to the extent of 50 per cent, which he and President Coolidge exercised. There has been virtually no hope of this, however, since the strength of the Democratic-Progressive coalition became manifest. Incidentally, there was very little enthusiasm among Republican leaders for this power granted to the President at any stage of the proceedings.

It seems probable as this is written that the new bloc will dominate the Republican organization in the Senate. Its present choice for permanent leader is Senator McNary, of Oregon. The probability is he will replace Senator Watson at the regular session in December.

MESSRS. 'Y' ARE U.S.
WORLD BANK AGENTSMorgan Firm Believed to Be Principal in America for Institution.

PREEMINENCE IS SEEN

New York, Nov. 17 (A.P.).—Messrs. "Y" of New York, will speak for America in the councils of the World Bank. With its commonwealth stands the election of a township clerk, Messrs. "Y" have been chosen for one of the most important executive tasks in the world. They will represent the United States unofficially in an institution which many bankers have predicted will become preeminent in international finance.

Four famous banking authorities, representing Britain, France, Belgium, Japan, Italy, Germany and the United States, have adjourned their sessions in Baden-Baden, Germany, after agreeing on a charter and statutes for the bank of international settlements.

Provisions of Charter. The American delegates were Melvin A. Traylor, president of the First National Bank of Chicago, and Ackson E. Reynolds, president of the First National Bank of New York. The text of the charter, chapter 2, article 8, provides: "Subscription of the authorized capital having been guaranteed in equal parts by the Banque Nationale de Belgique, the Banque de France, the Reichsbank, the Banca d'Italia, Messrs. 'Y' in place of the Bank of Japan and Messrs. 'Y' for New York, the bank may begin business as soon as the minimum of 112,000 shares has been subscribed. The first, that J. P. Morgan &amp; Co. is the principal part of Messrs. 'Y' the second is that Messrs. 'Y' will have the cooperation of Messrs. 'A' of Chicago; Messrs. 'B' of Boston; Messrs. 'C' of San Francisco; Messrs. 'D' of New Orleans, and so on through the list of American financial centers.

Morgan Firm Pioneered. The Morgan company pioneered in giving American finance a larger role. When the present J. P. Morgan was a man of 36, he saw what may be termed the beginning of the Morgan international banking business. The elder Morgan negotiated a loan of $50,000,000 to Japan in 1904 and followed this with smaller deals with other countries.

Morgan senior died in 1918 and his son had not been in power more than a year when the war broke out. It was during the war that the house achieved its present position of dominance and after the war J. P. Morgan gave his attention to the rehabilitation of European governments. It was Morgan's constant contention that real prosperity could not be achieved in the United States until the affairs of Europe were in good order.

Natal Police Rewind
Raids on Tax Dodgers

Durban, Natal, Nov. 17 (A.P.).—The police early today made another raid in which they arrested 700 natives for evasion of payment of a poll tax due last March. The prisoners will be dealt with by a special court. The police recently have taken strong measures against native delinquents, apparently as a show of force to prevent more serious disturbances which have threatened.

Workmen of 17th Century
Forced to Take Pay in Wine

Situation Got So Serious That They Had to Pass a Law
About It, United States Colonial Research
Bulletin Reveals.

Richmond, Va., Nov. 18 (A.P.).—Wages for labor in Virginia in 1625 were "intolerable," wrote a colonial treasurer, records for the year before showing that bricklayers received the equivalent in tobacco of $2.43 a thousand bricks.

If a bricklayer's price in 1625 was exorbitant, certainly the wage scale in the Commonwealth had been adjusted to the benefit of the employer by 1662, when carpenters' wages were ordered not to exceed 30 pounds of tobacco, worth 42 cents, per day.

The history of wages in the Virginia of the 1600s and 1700s and that of other colonies is set forth in Bulletin 499 of the Bureau of Labor Statistics, United States Department of Labor, made public here today.

Liquor, as well as labor, was a problem in the seventeenth century, says the bulletin. A statute of 1645 reads: "Whereas it is found by too common and sad experience in all parts of the colony that the forcing of laborers and other workmen to take wine in lieu of wages is a great nursery or preparative to drunkenness, it is therefore ordered and ordained by this court that no laborer or workman whatsoever shall after publication and promulgation hereof be forced or pressed to take wine in pay for his labour objected to pay."

If the laborers objected to payments in wine, it apparently was not for prohibition reasons, for in 1672, workmen were accused of "demanding an allowance of liquors or wines every day, over and above their wages, with which it is found, by too and experience many refuse to work." It was "therefore ordered by the court that by authority thereof, and be it hereby enacted, that if any person or persons after publication hereof shall give wine or strong liquors to any workman or boys that work with them, except in case of necessity, shall pay 20 shillings ($3.33) for every such offence."

Despite their troubles over wages and wine allowances, "labourers" of seventeenth-century Virginia also had things to be thankful for. Because the plantations needed carpenters and he was one, a Virginian in 1618 received a reprieve from a death sentence for manslaughter and was indentured as a servant. This, according to the survey, was the first recorded indenture of a criminal. Later the imposition of English criminals on the American population became a problem with Benjamin Franklin as a leading opponent.

The "union" idea came into vogue in Philadelphia as early as 1786 when 26 journeymen printers agreed not to work for less than $6 a week. It was nine years before printers in New York could induce shops to pay them as much as $1 a day.

also one of President Hoover's intimates, called the meeting for tonight—a dinner between the afternoon and night sessions of the Senate.

A close relationship between President Hoover and the Senate of the newly elected members and from those who are up for reelection next year. Discussing the group, Senator Allen said:

"We are a group of fellows helping the Republican party and the administration by getting the tariff bill in the best shape possible. We are simply getting together for the purpose of passing a tariff bill in a reasonable time."

"We have a real Hoover bloc," observed Senator Robinson, of Indiana, another of the "young guard."

The new Senate Republican faction and the Western Republican Independent, who are the leaders of the Hoover farm relief and tariff programs, are voting together in the attempt to keep the special session in continuous session.

Senator Allen disclaimed any drive against the leadership of Senator Watson, of Indiana, who has been forced to the Southland to resist from the strain of the long tariff fight.

Nevertheless, the Old Guard leaders in the Senate, including Senator Watson, the veteran Senator from Utah, who is in charge of the tariff bill as chairman of the finance committee, are looking wonderingly at the activities of the younger group.

Mentoring possibilities are seen to the veteran party leadership once the "young guard" take the power. Already one of the group has struck out at the leadership of Senator Mooney, of New Hampshire, as chairman of the Republican senatorial campaign committee.

Metcalfe's Blow at Mooney.

Senator Metcalfe, of Rhode Island, who is up for reelection next year, has sent a letter to members of the Republican senatorial campaign committee asking them to call upon Chairman Mooney to call a meeting of the committee and adopt the following resolution:

"Resolved, That nothing be done in the State of Rhode Island without the approval of the candidate who is running for the office of senator."

The letter explained that "I do this because I realize it is so easy for an outsider to come into a State and make mistakes which would be very damaging to the election of the candidate."

Offering no comment on the Metcalfe letter, Senator Mooney said he had intended to come to call a meeting of his committee and would do so when he saw a necessity for it. He commented that he has seen no need for a meeting of the campaign committee hitherto because the committee does not participate in the primary campaigns of senators.

Has Been Under Fire.

While the Metcalfe letter was seen as another sign of the restlessness in the ranks of the "young guard," friends of Mooney did not seem concerned over any immediate uprising against him. He has been under fire from the younger Senate Republicans for his characterization of the Western Independents as the "sons of the wild jackasses."

Senator Metcalfe was chairman of the Republican senatorial campaign committee last year and was displaced by the Mooney appointment. While he could not have continued because he is a candidate for reelection, Metcalfe was replaced about six months earlier than some of his friends believed necessary.

Senator McNary, of Oregon, is looked upon as the candidate of the "Young Guard" for leader in the

ALL Ichabod needed was a flashlight . . . .

You've heard about Ichabod Crane and the Headless Horseman. A dark form by the side of the road . . . . thundering hoofs on the Sleepy Hollow Highway . . . . Ichabod flying before a fearful monster!

Poor Ichabod . . . . he was never to know that his hobgoblin was only a resourceful rival with a pumpkin head!

He should have had a flashlight! He would have taken a good look . . . . and laughed!

WE MEET ICHABODS on the street today.

"Oo-o-o-o-" wails one, with a long face. "Did you see the report that steel production is only 80 per cent of capacity? Things are sure going to the dogs."

A flashlight will disclose that the steel industry physically cannot produce at 100 per cent of its theoretical capacity. Production this year at 80 per cent means as much steel as was being produced at this time last year—a record year. And the steel people, who have flashlights, definitely plan a hundred million dollar plant extension.

"But, Oh dear, Oh dear, look at car loadings . . . . What a drop! Isn't it terrible?" . . . . Ichabod still seeing things in the dark.

Under the flashlight, what? Car loadings are always off at this season of the year, and they keep on going off the rest of the year.

This year is like all other years. But the less-than-car-load freight, the package for merchants' shelves, has actually increased.

"Did you see," whispers Ichabod, "that the savings deposits last year decreased by $195,000,000?"

But the flashlight reveals that during the same period the American people made great savings that appeared elsewhere than in savings banks. Take only the investments in life insurance. During the very period when savings deposits are said to have fallen off, we invested $300,000,000 in new life insurance—a new 10 billion dollar policy.

Ichabod hasn't heard anything to frighten him about the banking situation. But without a flashlight he would, despite the fact that the banks of the country have over fifty billion in deposits and they have behind them the Federal Reserve Banks with their gold reserves,—half a billion more than at the beginning of 1929. Neither the bank, with which Ichabod deals, nor the banks of these banks,—the Federal Reserve institutions,—were ever in a stronger position.

So, under the flashlight of cold facts and calm appraisal, rumors dissolve in a dozen fields.

Orders from railroads this fall for cars, rails and the like reach the largest total in five years. There is a large volume of demand for electrical equipment. Industries which have been earlier depressed are reporting that they are on the up-grade, and are optimistic. For example, the coal industry in some sections wonders where it will find enough miners to meet the demand for coal.

To play a flashlight over the whole world of business . . . . to free men from blind rumor by giving them authoritative facts . . . . such is the service of Nation's Business.

Published at Washington, by the United States Chamber of Commerce, it is in close and constant touch with the developments that create and control business conditions, which enables it to ignore wild rumors and conjectures.

It does more than record events . . . . it points out their bearing on business . . . . it helps more than 300,000 business men to plan wisely, aggressively, far-sightedly, because they are not like Ichabod Crane, making judgments in the dark.

NOTRE DAME, PITT RATED BEST ELEVENS IN YEARS

Silver Spring Wins Soccer Feature

Rosedale, Rockville, British United and Concord Score.

Hine-Macfarland and Columbia Victors in Junior League.

By RICHARD S. TENNYSON. THE local soccer season got into full swing yesterday when seven league games were played in widely scattered sections of the city and nearby Maryland. Washington Soccer League and the Junior American circuit played their opening games.

Good Game.

Gaelic-Americans put up their best game of the season, although defeated by the fast Silver Spring Eleven. At half time the Irish kickers were leading, 1 to 0, by virtue of a neat shot by McGintigan in the opening minutes of the game.

Football Contests Scheduled Saturday

(With scores when game teams met last year.) LOCAL. Gallaudet (38) vs. Shepherd (20), at Kendall Green.

A.A.U. Conditionally Accepts Simpson's 100-Yard Record

Notation of Starting Blocks to Be Put on List; Mark Will Not Displace 9.3-5 Seconds for Century.

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 17 (A.P.).—Conditional acceptance of the world record performance of 9.4-10 seconds for the 100-yard dash, made by George Simpson, of Ohio State, at the National Collegiate Athletic Association championship meet in Chicago last June, with the aid of starting blocks, was decided upon tonight by the record committee of the Amateur Athletic Union, in annual convention here.

A. A. U. Awards Capital 15-Mile Championship

The national amateur championship 15-mile run for 1930 will be held in Washington under the auspices of the District of Columbia Association of the A. A. U. The Post was informed in a telegram last night from Ernest J. Spitzer, secretary of the local association, who is attending the national convention of the A. A. U. in St. Louis, Washington also stands a good chance of being awarded the 1930 convention of the union, Spitzer also stated.

Only Five Football Contests Remain for District Colleges

LOCAL college football staged its climatic event when Georgetown and West Virginia battled to a tie last Saturday and only two games remain to be played before the Capital spotlight switches to basketball. This pair of contests will be decided on two dates, the first being Saturday, Nov. 23, at the University of Maryland, and the second, the annual Georgetown-Catholic game, on Thanksgiving Day, Nov. 28, at the University of Maryland.

Shepherd Eleven of Unknown Caliber

Just what Shepherd will bring from the provinces in the way of a football team is not known here, but if the West Virginians have done much this season they have managed to keep it a secret.

Central Plays Eastern for 2nd Place

Earlier Starting Time Sought for Battle Tomorrow.

Fray to Mark Passing of Many Leading School Athletes.

PERMISSION to start the final football game of the interhigh series between Central and Eastern tomorrow fifteen minutes earlier than the regular time, will be sought today by Dr. G. Harris White, athletic director for the public high schools, who will personally make this request to the five principals of the schools.

Game to Decide Second Place.

And with the game tomorrow deciding the holder of the runner-up position, it is only right that it should be played under the most favorable conditions. Surely, no team should drop to third place merely because its players are not as good as the eleven men in the opposing line-up.

Catholic U. Eleven Handicapped.

The declinence of Catholic's defeat at the hands of William and Mary last Saturday was due more to the fact that the local team was greatly handicapped by the loss of star players than to the strength of the Williamsburg eleven. Capt. Jack Malovich, Carl DeMello and Joe Champa, all back field lights, were not in the game, while Johnny Oliver and Gene Murphy played with injuries.

Los Angeles Awarded Women's Golf Tourney

New York, Nov. 17 (A.P.).—The 1930 Women's National Golf Association championship has been transferred from Buffalo to Los Angeles at the request of the women's committee of the United States Golf Association.

The Timid Soul

—By H. W. Webster

Craig Wood Winner of Honolulu Tourney

Honolulu, Nov. 17 (A.P.).—Craig Wood, Bloomfield, N. J., won the second annual Hawaiian $5,000 open golf championship today, scoring a 282 for the 72 holes.

HAWKS BEAT IRVINGTON BY 14-0

Sandlotters Star in Rout of Baltimore Champions.

STRICTLY sandlot players—those who learned football on the back lots amid the tin canes—came into their own yesterday at Oriole Stadium. Possibly the sandlot products are the best mudders, but at any rate the college dominance that has swept over the semipro grid game here, last year's Baltimore champions, by a 14-0 score.

WITH the mile and a sixteenth of the $10,000 added Prince Georges Handicap as the program feature, it is a well-filled and well-balanced card which Racing Secretary J. McEwen is offering patrons this afternoon for Bowles' inaugural attraction.

However, interest in the Prince Georges will be completed by the Moe Lowenstein decide to send Willis Sharpe Kilmer's Sun Beau and the Le Mar Star Farm's Mispup postured for the running of the Shenandoah Purse.

Both have been nominated, but there is a feeling in some quarters that either one or both will be missing when "boots and saddle" are sounded. With either Sun Beau or Mispup out, the Shenandoah does not hold forth much promise of developing into anything other than a high-class racing spectacle.

The Prince Georges field from the handicap division. On the strength of his brilliant showing in the Riggs Memorial it is just possible that J. Fred Adams' Glen Wild will be the ruling favorite, although Dr. Freeland, the Prekness winner, and the two Western invaders, Nellie Custer and Karl Kitzel, will not be without support.

MERCURY ELEVEN BEATEN BY EMERSON

St. Stephen's Hawk Preps In Tie

PREP ELEVEN BEATEN BY EMERSON
La Salle Bows, 20-0, to Heavier D. C. Gridmen.

Special to The Washington Post.
CUMBERLAND, Md., Nov. 17.—La Salle Institute gridmen gave Emerson Prep, of Washington, a stirring battle for three periods here today, but the local line, outwitted by the visitors' backs, eventually succumbed to a 20-0 victory in a sea of mud. La Salle's backs were unable to make much headway because the Blue and Gold forward wall was not experienced and powerful enough to stop the mad rushes of the Capital City gridders. Still, the institute was in a scoring position on several occasions. Coach Long's minions held the ball twice within 15 yards of the Washington goal area. Emerson held the institute to five first downs, three of which came via the lateral pass route.

The visitors were caught napping on several passes in the opening half but La Salle was helpless in the crisis. Emerson ran wild in the final period, beating back La Salle's defense in the first two periods. The first touchdown of the game came two minutes after the opening kickoff, when Emerson's backs carried the ball 15 yards to the 15-yard mark. The same player kicked the goal. La Salle threatened shortly after when lateral passes carried the ball to the Washington 15-yard mark, where the institute was held for downs. The remainder of the half was fought on even terms. Line plunging by Cable and Trilling gave the visitors two touchdowns in the final quarter.

doing the best punting of the season for the Hawks, tossing passes, carrying the ball and putting up a fine defensive line. Dewey was as good as usual, turning in a masterpiece on one occasion when he ran over the line and tackled the Redskins while a Browning gave a brilliant line performance. He virtually played himself into exhaustion before being relieved in the second period.

While these Washington sandloters were starting, the Baltimoreans exhibited one of the best games of the season. They were acting off to a poor start but one play made them look like a team. The "flying wedge" was used to the advantage of the team and the rules have been doing his own pushing and shoving with the ball tucked under his arm.

Baker Takes Hawks "Piggy Back" Rides.
True, Baker did not score a touchdown, but neither did President Hoover elect himself. Time has taken its toll of the Hawks, but they are good for 5 yards a plunge if his plungers were at least three downs apart. On three occasions, Baker went through the center of the hawk line and appeared to be taking at least three plungers for a "piggy back" ride.

The first score of the game was a sandlot touchdown. The Collegians helped but it was the sandloters who supplied the punch. The most important play was a pass from Collier to Cox (Bottle to Bottle) which put the ball on the 1-yard line, from where Dewey crossed the goal line. The Collegians tried to make the extra point when Collier passed to DuFour, formerly of Catholic U. That was in the second period.

The Hawks steadily down the field and terminated in Howard diving over the Washington goal line. Collier dropped the added point. The Baltimoreans made their most serious scoring threat in the last period. Baker's smashes and some passes sent the Redskins to the 20-yard line, where a pass failed over the goal line, and Dewey ran the ball to midfield to put the Redskins out of danger.

Centennials Defeat Anacostia Team, 32-0
A driving, scintillating eleven which last week clinched the Petworth Pennants from 135-round football championship circles, yesterday ran rough-hod over another stone in the last of the Petworth Centennials swept aside the Anacostia Eagles, 32 to 0.

After battling the Centennials on the short end of a 6-0 score for the first half, the Eagles saw four touchdowns scored against them in the last period. The Centennials contributed the outstanding feature of the game in the third period when he snared an alien "aces" and ran 80 yards for another touchdown. Lannahan and Foley were great defensive aids in the Centennial lineup.

REDBIRD WIN COSTLY TO WAVERLY
Title Hopes Hurt by Northerns, Who Annex 14-6 Score.

In a game lacking thrills and marked by much slipping and sliding on the muddy gridiron, the Northerns yesterday threw a wrench into the unbridled title hopes of the Waverly by annexing a 14-6 decision on the Silver Spring field.

After a scoreless first quarter, near the end of which the Red Birds, by stepping a scoreless game with St. Stephen's, while the Mercury stallions were blunting the hopes of the previously unbeaten Brookland & C. In a result, the championship of 1929 will hang in the balance next Sunday when the Brookland and St. Stephen's teams replay a game which the Brookland team won earlier in the season, 14 to 0, only to have it ruled out by protest. St. Stephen's can gain the title by beating Brookland. The latter can gain a tie with the Brookland team for the flag by beating the Saints next week. In the latter case, a play-off would be necessary between Brookland and the Saints.

Apaches Work Tonight; Play Firemen Sunday
The Apache Athletic Club Eleven will start intensive drill tonight for the annual Mohawk game at Griffith Stadium on December 1. Coach Lytle will put the Indians through their paces at Union Park at 7:30 o'clock, regardless of the weather, he said last night. The Apaches, who were idle yesterday, will meet the Best Pleasant Firemen on the latter field on Sunday.

GRID RACES DECIDED IN MOST SECTIONS

Hampshire, of the Big Ten, for the first time and Detroit of the Middle West group; Tennessee and Tulane, the pace setters in the Southern Conference; Texas Christian, in the Southwest; Utah, the Rocky Mountain Conference title holders; California, at the top of the Pacific Coast Conference; and St. Mary's, unscathed on the only team to hold California to as much as a tie.

Purdue turned back Iowa by 7 to 0, to clinch the Big Ten crowd, while Michigan was upsetting Minnesota, 7 to 6, and Indiana rallying in the last period to topple Northwestern, 19 to 14. Illinois trounced Chicago, 20 to 6, but no longer has a chance to retain the honors held twice in a row. Detroit beat Michigan State, 25 to 0, and added to a record marked only by a tie with Marquette, which upset Boston College in another form reversal yesterday, 20 to 6.

Tennessee eliminated Vanderbilt from the Southern Conference race by a 13-to-0 victory, while Tulane kept pace by beating Sewanee, 16 to 0. Alabama handed Georgia Tech the latter's fifth defeat of the season. Florida beat Clemson and Maryland trounced V. P. I. with surprising ease. Pittsburgh's place at the top in the East is now undisputed as Cornell, the only other major team unbeaten up to Saturday, fell before Dartmouth's last-period spurt, 18 to 14. Yale's conquest of Princeton by 13 to 0 without the services of Albie Booth sounded taps for the worst Tiger season under Bill Roper's regime. It also served warning for next Saturday on Harvard, which beat Holy Cross 12 to 6. Bucknell's victory over Penn State, 27 to 6, was more surprising than Colgate's triumph over Syracuse, 21 to 0. Army rolled up 80 points against Dickinson and Navy 61 on Wake Forest.

Texas Christian Upsets Texas University.

Texas Christian eliminated Texas University, the 1928 Southwestern Conference champions, from the race with a victory by 15 to 12. It was the first game in which the Texas goal line has been crossed. Southwestern Methodist wallowed the Baylor Bears, 25 to 6, to stay in a contention position. The Big Six championship is still undecided as a result of Oklahoma's 13 to 13 tie with Nebraska, titleholders last year. Missouri wandered from the fold to meet New York University and take a beating, 14 to 7.

In the West, California barely withstood an average rush of the Washington Huskies to win by 7 to 0 and keep the conference lead in Washington, although losing five conference games, at least recovered much prestige by holding Stanford and California to single touchdowns victories in successive games. Santa Clara's passing attack overthrew Stanford, 13 to 7, in the biggest upset of the day. As a result California probably will be favored to beat the Cardinals next Saturday in the deciding game of the conference battle.

Mount Rainier	125-Pound	7	4	0	14

YESTERDAY'S RESULTS.
Brookland B. C. 125, Mount Rainier 0 (forfeit).

THE first amateur football championship of the season was awarded yesterday when the Brookland Boys' Club Eleven completed its program in the Capital City League with a forfeit decision over the last place Mount Rainier team, thereby clinching the 125-pound title. The Mount Rainier Club failed to appear for play as scheduled and Referee Joe Mitchell virtually bestowed the championship upon the Brookland lads when he declared the game forfeited. Both of the teams have completed their schedules.

New Champions.
Mount Rainier also clinched last place in forfeiting its final game after battling gamely through three previous engagements without a victory.

Hander Furnishes Winning Point.
Hender rushed center to give Columbus its margin of victory over the Notre Dame team. Howland and Dearborn ran wild for the Palacians. Kirchmeyer and Humphrey furnished the winning punch for Janney. Phelps' line plunging accounted for the Meridians victory.

AGENTS TO BE BUSY

By NELSON B. BELL.

Aside from the fact that it is extraordinarily diverting entertainment, I should say that the most significant attribute of this distinctively different screen musical comedy is that it establishes a new method of approach to this type of picture. It is first, last and always a camera product that could never be successfully transplanted to the stage. It visualizes a story of musical comedy and squallor as cleverly devised that the introduction of songs, dances, comedy chatter and the other familiar elements of musical comedy are accomplished without interruption of the major narrative or distraction from the central love interest.
